BREADSTUFFS AND THE WAR.

(From the Providence Journal.)

The rise in breadstuffs in consequence of the European war induces inquiry as to the legitimacy of the advance, and also as to its prospective permanency. From figures given by Dr Young, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Treasury Department, the Baltimore American has compiled some tables which are of interest. The total cereal crop of Europe is estimated at 4,891 000 000 bushels per annum. Of this there is furnished by

Russia	1 000 000 000 bushels
Germany	742 500 000 bushels
France	625 000 000 bushels
Austria	550,000 000 bushels

The production of this country is put at 1,337,250,000 bushels. The United States produces 19½ bushels to every inhabitant, while the average in Europe is only about 4½ bushels per head. But it is to be remembered that our superiority is owing largely to our immense production of corn, that crop amounting to three-fifths of our cereal production. It is calculated that the amount of cereals requisite for each person is on the average, nearly five bushels per year. Russia and Prussia are our largest competitors in the corn markets in regard to which Spain is. However, we have but those competitors. In 1873, the imperative Great Britain called from the United States and Canada not less than 50 per cent of the entire importation. And we sent over 50 per cent of the importation of maize. It is also to be said that the wheat exported from Canada was shipped in the United States. Russia and Turkey have supplied Great Britain with about 22 per cent of her grain imports. If the war should be confined to these two countries, it is evident that they will export less of grain, the deficiency we shall be called upon to make up part. Should the grain growing countries of Europe, in excess of their needs, keep out of the conflict, it is fair to presume that they will increase their cereal production, and so have more to export. Should the war extend, we should find a market for more and more of our grain. At any rate, it is certain, our supply of wheat being at present not equal that of former years, at the same date, that breadstuffs must be higher. That they will be dear and kept high enough to give a profit to the speculators is another matter. There is more than twice the quantity of corn in store now than there was last year at this time. Now, even without regard to price, it would be much healthier for our people if they would use more corn meal and less of the finely bolted wheat flour. Nothing is sweeter in the bread line than various articles which, from good, old-fashioned brown-bread to corn-cakes, can be made from freshly ground corn meal. As a matter of health, or economy and of good living, we ought to make of our corn. If by such possibilities the American agriculturists could be started into the consumption of oats and the habit of oatmeal. It would be well worth while. Here with at and stock at prohibitory prices for a decade.

The students of the military school at Constantinople sent a petition to the Porte, denouncing Midhat Pashaism and its institutions, and shouting for Mr Cullen. The boys were marched into the school yard and ordered to reveal the name of the author of the petition. One of them, a promising young youth of twenty-two, stepped forward and avowed himself as the author. He was condemned early in April to five hundred blows on the soles of his feet, and said after one hundred and blows had been administered. For pronouncing the Grand Vizier's name is construed into a Sub Rosa writer in Mussulmanic. Keep a prisoner, with a iron around his body and fetters on his feet. These incidents, which are telegraphed from Pera to the London Times, show that the abolition of inhuman modes of punishment which has been decreased in hundred imperial firmans, is a hollow fraud.

Ex Senator Wm G Brownlow better known as "Parson Brownlow," of Tennessee, died Sunday. He was born in Virginia August, 1856. In 1826 he entered Methodist ministry and was an itinerant preacher for ten years. While travelling in South Carolina he took part in the Nullification controversy. In 1837 he became the editor of the Knoxville Whig, and his bold method of conducting it brought him for him the sobriquet of "Fighting Parson." He boldly opposed the secession movement, and in consequence was repeatedly persecuted being thrown into prison. For several months confinement he was released and escorted into the Union lines. He returned to Tennessee after the capture of Nashville by the Union forces and was governor of the state from 1865 to 1869. He was elected United States Senator in the latter year.

It begins to be suspected that the Russian fleet is here on business. This country is the main reliance of Turkey for arms and ammunition, and Russia intends to cut the supply. Another Russian fleet is rising along the coast of California, probably on the same mission. Now we declare that foreign sailing Russian vessels find pleasant and profitable occupation running down and capturing these goods, as soon as they leave American waters, and should England become interested in the struggle, these men-of-war might ravage English commerce.

"Mark Twain" has been giving his views of the European war to a Baltimore reporter as follows:

Nicholas is a long-headed man, but if he can't keep a sharp lookout all his fat will be in the fire. But I can't keep the run of the movement—by the cable despatches. Can't locate the places on the map. I read that the Russians will move from Kruckenjawoff via Bullyboyenskhow on to Jullemallibet. Then I look on my European map and I don't find the places. A European map is like a blackboard with nothing on it, leaving the industrious student of contemporaneous history to fill in the outlines. The hard part of it is that they'll go on fighting just as though good maps were to be had for the asking.

A new law of Missouri makes it a misdemeanor for a bank director or trust officer in that state to receive deposits or contract debts after they learn that the institution is insolvent, and such officers shall be liable jointly and severally in suits brought to recover deposits as debts, and the plea of ignorance will be no bar to their liability. In that region they call this a law for "knocking the brown stone front transgressor."

The Crown Prince of Germany is a compositor by trade and Kaiser Wilhelm a tailor, though he has not practiced his profession for a number of years. All the Russian princes have to learn some handicraft, not in order to provide against hard times, but that they may learn the feelings of the common people.

MILITARY STRENGTH OF RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

(From the N. Y. World.)

Russia goes into the war with a population of 86,500,000; a deceptive total of course, since it includes the Kirghiz, Orientals, etc., that, so far from contributing to the nation's strength in case of a war, form an element of weakness, demanding care or even repression. Her debt is placed at $1,504,000,000. Her finances have had to be nursed for several years back, and in the event of a war, upon no slender a balance sheet, their budget hinge, that Russia would have to borrow largely to meet the interest of her debt and supply deficiencies. Her last popular loan was not a success, it is true, but the declaration of the leading Russian journalist, Katkoff, "We must have war," counts for a great deal as an assurance that popular feeling supports the Czar. In the essential matter of railroads Russia is better situated than she was during the Crimean campaign, but the single track are not expected by such good critics as Herr Wickede to stand the strain of a campaign with efficiency.

The inhabitants of Russia from twenty to forty form the army, six years' service with the active army and nine years in the reserves being demanded by European Russia. The regular army on a war footing includes the following

	Officers	Men	Total
Active service	21,007	845,163	866,170
Reserves	8,422	681,758	690,180
Depots	905	242,282	243,187
Local troops	12,773	98,856	111,629
Total	41,107	1,868,059	1,909,166

The army also has 105,148 non-combatants, 210,848 horses and 3,960 guns. To this may be added the irregular army (Cossacks, &c) containing 1,605 officers, 148,000 men and 5,708 non-combatants.

There is a matter of course, are figures upon paper. It should be stated that there are doubts whether the enormous element of the serfs, giving the soldier something to live for, has made him more amenable to discipline, to say nothing of the spread of stopping such all the conspiracy. Again, the new army organization only dates back to October 1st, 1874, and after deducting from the strength of the army the forces in the Caucasus (43,000 men) and the armies of Orenburg, Siberia and Turkestan (30,000 men), and making allowance for garrisoning their forts to keep up there can hardly be counted upon for service more than 600,000 men. A few years hence when the system has been gotten into working order and the reserves are full, there will of course be another story to tell. The cannon are remarkably good, the small arms are yet to be tested.

The original plan contemplated the mobilization of four corps, say 140,000 men with two more, or 65,000 men, in reserve and a co-operating force of some 50,000 men working towards Constantinople from the side of the Caucasus. Now, including the reinforcements and reserves at Kiev, the army proper contains 300,000 men, with 120,000 men in the second line forty miles behind. (Such are latest mail advices, we think the estimates excessive.) The point is made that General Nepokoitchitsky, the famous strategist, charged with the conduct of the campaign will not move without at least 310,000 men, thus avoiding the risk of a reverse in any direction where the offensive was assumed with an inadequate force.

Among those forces Turkey has in the field in the Dobrudscha (in Silistria, Varna, Schumla &c) something over 100,000 men, some 60,000 along the Danube and 30,000 more near Widdin; an army in the first line of nearly 200,000 men. A force as strong is placed upon the second line of the Balkans, sided mightily (as it was not half a century ago) by proper fortification of the defiles, the third line passing from Adrianople to Philippopolis, and forming a sort of intrenched camp.

As to the Turkish army statistics are more abundant than satisfactory. Probably the most trustworthy report is that of the Allgemeine Zeitung. It declares the pays to be small and much in arrear but the food usually ample, and the barracks clean, spacious, and well ventilated. The artillery is strong and the arsenals are upon the whole tolerably well organized. Besides their heavy purchases of cannon and small arms in Germany, England and the United States, Turkey can depend upon two gunpowder factories, an artillery arsenal and a cast steel factory. The engineer force is very efficient. The war strength of the Turkish army is placed at 200,700 men, with 20,000 in the first reserve, 31,000 in the second reserve, 32,800 in the military police, and 120,000 in the third reserve. A total of 486,100. The irregulars are estimated at 20,000 and the auxiliaries at 80,000. Of the latter, how many could be counted upon, with Egypt anxious to behold all Islam cast to its sixty million in revolt or discontented. On the other hand the sultan holds his trump card as commander of the faithful, in holding, or threatening to preach a holy war, may compel the assistance of England, assistance even more to be desired than that of the whole Mahometan sect. According to Fresser's Behlan and Mayvalle Guide the regular forces should number 600,000 men in 1880, an estimate somewhat higher than the preceding one.

As to the quality of the Turkish troops the facts can be doubted. They remind one of a cross between the immortal Bob Sawyer and Dick Swiveller, a strange combination of disorganizing, unscrupulously and fight stubbornly behind walls or under good leaders. The defence of Kars, under Sir William Fenwick Williams, may be recalled in proof of their stubborn courage, while the battles before Alexinatz, all of them soldiers' battles, in the fullest sense of the word, attest the freedom under sharp fire. During the late Serbian campaign their native officers showed good generalship, how they would sustain themselves against a regular Russian force remained to be seen. The world's point of the Ottoman soldiers its column of attack. Between frontal and in efficiency, if the London Times is to be believed, the victors of Mukatza found themselves the day after their splendid achievement disordered so utterly as to ambulance, commissariat and train that but for the fortunate circumstance they could not have moved for weeks.

On the Black Sea, on the other hand the Turks have very much the whip hand. In December last the Russian fleet on that sea comprised 2 two gun ironclads besides one in process of construction, 25 ships of war, and 1 building and 4 armed vessels—a total of 33 vessels, with 87 guns, having a tonnage of 31,383 and a power of 4,380 horses. Turkey, on the other hand, could pour into the Black Sea nearly the whole of her fleet of 30 ironclads and 70 wooden vessels, mounting 168 gun, carrying 16,188 men having a horse-power of 28,905. This preponderance in favor of Turkey helps her to dispute the passage of the Danube and enables her to compel the advance on Constantinople to be made by land from the Pruth and the Danube, and without any help by sea.

It seems rather early for forest fires, but the reports of their havoc on Long Island during the past week, should stimulate precautions against their occurrence elsewhere. The damage yearly done by such conflagrations is so great that there would seem to be stringent reason for the exercise of ingenuity and care in preventing them. In no other country are the inefficiency and carelessness which these fires indicate tolerated and it is high time that we should put a stop to them.

A Correspondent's Report of the Russian Intention

GALATZ, April 30 A correspondent says I do not believe the Russians will at present attempt anything beyond occupying certain strategic points for the purpose of protecting the pontoon bridges and crossings of the Danube against Turkish cavalry raids. Delay is good policy for the Russians, as the Turks have already placed every man they can muster in the field, while the Russians can constantly increase their army up to a moment of action

Nevertheless, a Russian General recently informed a friend of mine that the Russians were fully prepared to sacrifice 30,000 men in forcing the passage of the Danube, should circumstances compel them to immediate action in this direction

Resolutions to be Offered by Gladstone

In the House of Commons to-day Mr Gladstone gave notice that he should introduce five resolutions They declare in effect that England has just cause of complaint at the conduct of the Porte, reference is made to Lord Derby's despatch last September relating to Bulgarian massacres and the resolutions proceed to declare that until there is a change of conduct and guarantees given the Porte has no moral or material claim to the support of the British Crown that in the midst of complications and with war actually begun the House earnestly desires the influence of England in the councils of Europe be employed for the effectual development of liberty and local self government in the disturbed provinces that the House further desires the influence of England be addressed to the promotion of harmonious action among European powers with a view of exacting such means of government from Turkey as are necessary for the purposes of humanity and justice for effectual defence against foreign and for security of the peace of the world

Mr Gladstone stated that the resolutions will be submitted solely on his own responsibility

Sir Stafford Northcote appointed Monday next for debate on the resolutions

SIX EVENINGS WITH THE SCULPTORS. Notwithstanding the unfavorableness of the weather Unity Hall was crowded to its utmost last evening with a fine audience to listen to the fourth lecture in the course of six evenings with the sculptors, by Rev. A. M. Knapp. The evening was devoted to showing representations from the Mute Roman Schools. Down to the time of Trajan the principal sculptured works consisted of reliefs on public monuments, such as those adorning the Arches of Titus and Trajan, and statues and busts of the emperors, many of which are meritorious in point of execution. The portrait statues of this period were particularly fine. The statues and busts of the emperor's favorite Antinous may be regarded as specimens. A large number of representations taken from treasures which have been unearthed at Pompeii and Herculaneum were also shown. The lecture was very entertaining throughout and highly appreciated by the audience. The next lecture in this course takes place next Monday evening.

RUNAWAY Yesterday morning a horse owned by Daniel Garland was being driven up Exchange street, when one of the bolts broke, letting the shafts on to the heels of the horse, who started, and in turning the corner upset the wagon, throwing the driver out and clearing himself from the carriage The horse continued his run up Main street as far as J C White & Co's, where he took the sidewalk and run up by the Bangor House. He then turned down into May street, and after he had his run out was captured without having done any further damage

OLDTOWN Mr Editor The last of the series of union meetings held by the churches of this place was conducted last sabbath evening by Messrs Rowell and Hulin of the Lynn Praying Band The interest in the "Old Old Story" does not seem to have diminished during the fourteen weeks of protracted services, as the Baptist church was filled with an attentive congregation Eighty-four different persons took part in the exercises, this interspersed with frequent singing assisted by the organ under the skillful manipulation of Bro Hulin, with the fact that it was the last of the special services in which so many of the congregation had found the power of a Savior's love combined to make it one of the most interesting meetings of the series Bros Rowell and Hulin left town yesterday morning for Waterville, but the results of their faithful labors are left with us Although this is the last of the special union meetings it is not the last of the union feeling The churches have taken hold together in the work of brotherly love and will now hold fast to shoulder, work for the truth Nearly or quite one hundred persons have been led to feel their need of a Savior some of them elderly people some middle aged and many of them young in years The work of the churches has only just begun They must drill the new recruits into efficient soldiers They must help them by their counsel and more of all by their example—the new Ready believe that there will be more to follow S W C

THE WORK OF BENEVOLENCE

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE UNITARIAN HEALTH BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

The question has of the vessel which was the organ and which is the object of the Ladies Benevolent Society We propose in as few words as possible to give you an outline of its history

Do you remember the winter of meetings held at City Hall during the winter of 1871 and 1872, in aid of the sufferers of the Chicago fire Early in the spring of 1872, word was received that the want of Chicago in regard to clothing had become A number of ladies belonging to the Unitarian Society having collected a number of articles, and finding the necessity of some permanent organization among themselves for charitable purposes resolved to combine them in order to alleviate in some degree the sufferings of the poor in our own City

City Hall being free for the use of private benevolence Sir Hamilton generously offered us the use of a room in Strickland Block early in April 1872 we removed there remaining until some time in May The following fall, in April the 9th of 1874 we met by invitation at the house of Hon Charles Hamlin and organized an association with worthy purpose for and was started about weekly from house to house

The recollection of first attempts is fortunate, it has been truly will therefore be impossible to give the exact statistics, but the number of working members could have exceeded twelve, and the only available funds was the unbounded liberality of Hamlin who seemed pressing need of tool or medicine, to their knowledge the money was spent, such demands were robbed by such contribution among themselves Twas in fact the day of small things for this society

The first report was given April 10th 1874, it shows the following record Twenty six meetings in all with an average attendance of sixty six One hundred and eighty six new and one hundred and fifty five second hand garments distributed among twenty seven families As a portion of the 11 unassigning collecting had been added to our funds enabling us to extend our charities our expenditures for that year amounted to one hundred and thirty one (131) dollars

As the Big Hall became entirely inadequate to our needs, and its transportation so difficult that necessity of some permanent place which in to hold our meetings was felt a committee was appointed to secure a room for that purpose but before a suitable one could be obtained, Mr C I Lyon very generously offered us one over his store on Main street On Nov 12th, 1874, we held our first meeting and have continued to meet there until the present time

Our receipts that year amounted to two hundred and eighty-three dollars and sixty three cents, ($283 63)

EXPENDITURES

Materials and Incidental expenses	$136 42
Provisions	107 78
Boots and Shoes	32 67
Total amount expended	$276 87

Number of meetings, twenty seven with an average attendance of twenty three hundred and six men and four hundred and sixty seven second hand garments distributed among forty three families showing added growth of the society in interest, numbers and work accomplished

Last year owing to unavoidable circumstances no report was given but upon referring to the record it shows the following statistics

RECEIPTS

Three hundred and fifty-eight dollars

EXPENDITURES

Materials	$160 60
Provisions,	85 16
Boots & Shoes,	51 70
Medicine,	19 20
Sundries,	35 67
Total amount	$352.42

Twenty seven meetings were held, with an average attendance of sixteen five hundred and fifty-eight new, and four hundred and forty-seven second-hand garments, distributed among fifty-eight families

Thus briefly have been given you the statistics of the past four years. You have probably noticed the gain from year to year, both in numbers and in the amount of work accomplished, indications of constantly increasing interest.

Now may I ask your attention to the record of the winter just past The first meeting was held on November 16th, 1876, the last April 10th, making twenty three meetings in all, the largest attendance thirty-eight, smallest twelve, average twenty-five. There have been contributed to the society during the winter, seven hundred and sixty second hand garments, fifty yards of print, the wood for our winter's use, various delicacies for distribution among the sick, and last, but by no means the least, four hundred and thirty six pounds of fresh beef, from Mr. D Wood. Through the generosity of this gentleman, many a nice dinner was found its way to the rooms of the poor, not only gladdening their hearts but establishing a precedent, which it is hoped others will feel inclined to follow when the labors of another year commence And while recording the donations I take this opportunity to express the grateful acknowledgements of this society to Mr C I Lyon, for his generosity in giving us the rent of his hall for the last three years, and our thanks to himself, other members of the firm and their employes for the uniform kindness and courtesy

Our thanks also are especially due to our Pastor, for his generous and laborious efforts in our behalf. Not only was a hand some sum added to our treasury but instructive enjoyment given to ourselves as well

We have extended our care during the winter over seventy families (70), numbering two hundred and ninety-three persons Among all clothing has been distributed, and in thirty five families provisions as well Not only has clothing and provision been given but wood and coal furnished when it could not be procured in other ways, Medicine for the sick or a car ticket given an unfortunate girl to enable her to return to her friends, and money given to assist those who never before have been dependent upon charity

There have been made five hundred and eighty new garments—Distributed, four hundred and eleven and seven hundred and ten partially worn ones We have also distributed, 165 yards print, 38½ yards flannel, 89½ yards unbleached cotton, 168½ yards delaine, 8 yards shirting 44 yards bleached cotton, 5 yards cotton flannel, 14 yards ticking, 12 spools cotton, in all 411½ yards material We have also purchased and given away forty one (41) pairs of boots, shoes, and rubbers

A part of the money expended in the work has been raised by entertainments In estimating the work of this society the labor involved in conducting the entertainments forms no small part

Much time has been spent in visiting the sick and those in want ascertaining their needs and supplying them I say that our committees in every department have worked faithfully, is but just praise. To say that they have worked together in harmony, is proved by the fact that so much has been accomplished, for in union is strength

Electric Cure for Rheumatism.

Rheumatic patients who have been induced to submit to depletion by blood letting, or to take calomel and other drugs of a totally pernicious character will commit their well being by abandoning such barbarous practice and using as a substitute Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which will invariably afford them the most desired relief and is absolutely safe It is a vegetable specific that cools the blood by expelling from it the fatty matter or lactic acid which gives rise to inflammation of the joints and muscles and produces the excruciating pains which are the chief characteristics of this disease. It also invigorates the stomach and bowels which usually accompany them. As a remedial agent this tonic is a fact that the medical profession will not only resort to the Bitters in obstinate cases but they will also prescribe it in the early stages of the disease with the certainty of its effecting a speedy cure. Rheumatism is one of the most painful of human ailments and the sufferer should not delay a moment in the use of the Bitters. Dyspepsia, Constipation, Biliousness, Nervous Complaints, Fever and Ague, Kidney and Urinary Complaints are also speedily cured by this invigorant. Druggists and Dealers generally.

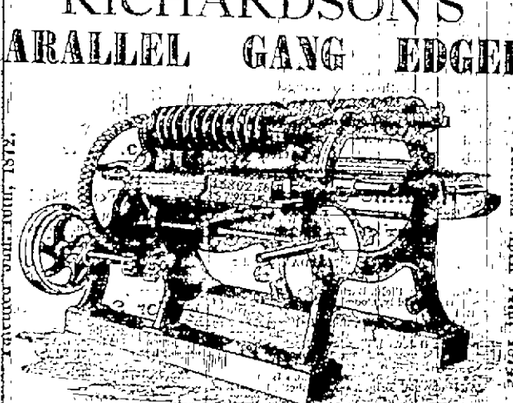
RICHARDSON'S PARALLEL GANG EDGER,



Patented April 14th, 1874.

The Patent movable Box on end of Arbor, gives it advantages over all others, as the difficulty heretofore experienced in removing Saws with Arbor, and loss of time, is fully overcome. You can take Saws in or out in a minute. The Gauge Bar with Box, and slip the saw off the Arbor, through the opening. The Gore Holders are another great improvement, as they regulate the Saws to the kind of work required to be done. These Edgers are used extensively for Sawing Deals and Scantling. We would caution purchasers against buying those machines which are an infringement on these patents. We make a variety of Edgers, with two or more saws, made to order.

Also on hand and for sale at low prices and liberal terms:
